PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to all housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women;

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon.

For Reference, enquire at the Mansion House, and of John Wilson,
Southworth's Boarding House, Mrs. S. F. Johnson.

STEAMER
U. S. GRANT,
Will make Two Trips per Week to the
CITY OF ASTORIA!
Carrying Passengers at $10, the Round Trip, (Meals Included.)

The Boat leaves Portland Wednesdays and Saturdays at 7½ A. M. Returning leaves Astoria Thursdays and Mondays at 6 o'clock A. M.

Every person purchasing a Passenger Ticket will be presented with one of 500 Tickets, to be drawn on the 1ST DAY OF AUGUST, 1867, for the following Prizes: Steamer U. S. GRANT, to be divided into 4 shares; ONE BLOCK OF LOTS IN EAST PORTLAND, divided into 8 shares, or one lot to the share, viz: Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, Block 17, opposite the "New Columbian" Hotel, and at the terminus of the proposed Suspension Bridge;
ONE GOLD WATCH, worth $100;
150 CORDS DRY FIR WOOD, in 8 shares, to be placed on the Brooklyn Wharf.

The Steamer is 84 tons burthen, 52 horse-power engine, propeller wheel, draft of water 5 feet. She is being thoroughly refitted and refurnished as a Passenger Boat. The Boat will be delivered in perfect order, free from all incumbrance, and Warranty Deeds made for the real estate, to the persons drawing the same. Tickets can be had of O. P. FERRY, in Portland, where the money will be left on deposit till the prizes are drawn and delivered.

Any person having a claim against me, and wishing a ticket, can get an order for one by calling on me on board the boat. The person drawing the gold watch can have $100 in gold coin, if preferred.

C. P. FERRY, Broker, R. J. LADD, ex-Sheriff, AL. ZEIBER, U. S. Marshal, and C. S. SILVER, Merchant, of Portland, are the Committee and Judges to direct the Drawing of Prizes. The Prizes will be drawn before the 1st of August, if all the tickets are taken before that time.

☞ The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the Steamer alone having cost $11,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare.
Portland May 21, 1867. d2m J. W. KERN.

Notice.

OWING TO THE STEAMER U. S. GRANT having lost several regular trips, she will continue to run for a few weeks, to give all ticket holders an opportunity to travel. The tickets stand good for a passage as long as the boat continues to run. A few more tickets yet to be disposed of.

MINING TOOLS. A Large Stock on hand and for sale by H. W. CORBETT & CO.

Impeachment.

During the long and bloody years of the late slaveholders' rebellion, these pages gave forth no uncertain sound, but were either the very first, or among the first to announce unequivocal positions upon the many vital questions of that great conflict, as circumstances evolved them. We have had the satisfaction to see our arguments reproduced in other columns, to hear our positions warmly commended, and, better than all, to see in nearly every instance, the triumph of the principles we espoused. A few such cases will recur to the mind of any one of our readers, and probably uppermost, in most of them the famous case of the late Major General, George Brinton McClellan.

True to our history, when the most superlative apostasy of Andrew Johnson developed itself, there columns were heard for impeachment. We had survived an unparalleled civil war—the prouder for the struggle and the triumph. We had survived the assassination of a doubly approved President—no jar in our machinery. The Republic could be put to one more original and severe test. Could we remove a President for cause by the constitutional method of impeachment? We maintained that we could, and that the necessary hour had arrived.

Now we maintain that when we were so convinced the evidence was sufficient to convince all radical men who inquired, and that the manly, honorable and constitutional road out of our then present difficulties was through the door of impeachment. And we further maintain that in this case, as in every one where square, plain duty is shirked or evaded, and temporary expedients and compromises resorted to instead, the compromisers are the arbitrators of the greater misfortunes that have befallen us.

If, instead of the cowardly enactment of the tenure of office bill, which, to say the least, could only be enacted by standing on the parapet of the constitution and ranching over after authority, the Congress of the United States had pursued the manly course, which we must be pardoned for holding, that each member knew under his oath was the true one, of impeachment, we would not be compelled to stand helplessly by and see the hopeful tide of reconstruction rolled back for months as we do to-day. Sad day when Congress declined to impeach so flagrant an apostate and quietly returned to their homes! Let the people again, as they did during the campaigns of last fall, declare to their representatives—this time not to be overlooked or misunderstood—that they must rid the country of Andrew Johnson as President, or he superseded themselves next time.

Having always been an ardent supporter of the general policy of Congress, we claim the right to read them this emphatic lecture. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."—Wilke's Spirit of the Times.

A TEXAS PACIFIC RAILWAY PROJECT.—The New York Evening Post has the following:

Judge Paschall, a prominent Unionist of Texas, has written a long letter to the Galveston News in relation to a railway enterprise which concerns not only Texas, but the whole country. He professes his business statement with some political advice, which Texans will do well to follow, reminding them that but for their delay in the work of reconstruction Northern capital would already be seeking investments in their State. He also informs them that in the Northern States the men of the largest enterprise, and those who would be most likely to assist in the building of a railway, are mostly Radicals. To win the assistance of such men, Texans must outgrow the notions and prejudices of a buried past, and enter into the spirit which has incited the great enterprises of the Northern States.

The great railway project which is at present engaging the attention of Judge Pascall and other leading Texans, as well as the capitalists in other States, is that of a road from a point on the Rio Grande, between El Paso and El Presido, to Guaymas, a port on the lower end of the Eastern coast of the Gulf of California. East of the Rio Grande there are likely to be several feeders for this route. One is the Southwest Pacific Railroad in Missouri which is to be built in a southwesterly direction through Arkansas. Either in Arkansas or Texas its line will cross that of the "Memphis, El Paso and Guaymas" road, which is to run through Little Rock, in Arkansas, and Monroe, in the northwest corner of Louisiana, to Jefferson, in Texas, which is reached by river navigation from New Orleans. It is expected that a line from the latter place will meet this road at Jefferson, or further west.

Those three lines will thus converge and unite through the greater part of Texas. One route may diverge to San Diego, in California, and another to Guaymas. In addition to the great "feeders" we have mentioned, it is likely that before many years the projected road from Lawrence, Kansas to Galveston, will be built. Whether Guaymas or San Diego, or both, be selected as the western terminus of the Southwestern Pacific Railway, the route is one which has many and manifest advantages. It is the opinion of those who are acquainted with the proposed line across Mexico, and with that to San Diego, that the former is decidedly the better of the two. We are told, on good authority, that the route across Mexico presents few engineering difficulties, and passes through a region abounding in wood and water, while the inhabitants are friendly and peaceable. Guaymas is one of the best ports on the Western coast, spacious, and with water enough to float the largest ships.

BRIDGE OVER THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.—The French papers describe an engineering project for a bridge across the Channel. Instead of the long meditated tunnel beneath the Channel, a French engineer, M. Boutet, now proposes to build a bridge broad enough to hold a double line of railway, a carriage road and a path for foot passengers. There would also be a space for a row of shops along this Dover and Calais road, which, once, established would no doubt become a very popular thoroughfare; and need we add, that half way across, there would be a restaurant and cafe. The bridge would rest on a series of thirty-two vertical rectangular iron piles, and each pile to be two hundred metres in height, and one hundred metres in breadth. The depth of the Channel between the two points selected is found to be not more than from thirty to thirty six metres, so that the bridge would be about one hundred and seventy metres above the level of the sea.

In laying down the bridge the first step taken would be to connect the iron piles by means of sixteen cables of plaited wire stretched in parallel lines from Shakspeare's Cliff, on the English side of the Channel, to Cape Blanc Nez, on the French side, a distance of thirty three kilometres, (about twenty miles.) The body of the bridge would thus be [illegible] but with a view of [illegible] opponents in error, they continually remind us of Abraham Lincoln. The Republican party can trust, with unlimited confidence, Schuyler Colfax to maintain their principles, in all their integrity, at all hazards and under all circumstances. Faithlessness to that freedom which he loves with so great a love, and into the vindication of which, from his first appearance in public life, he has thrown all his heart and soul with all the the vigor peculiarly characteristic of his nature, is impossible with Schuyler Colfax. Contemplating his whole public course, we think that all, even his political opponents, must feel instinctively that he would make a good President. In that word good is summed up what the nation needs in a President, what it lost in the death of President Lincoln, but would again recover with Schuyler Colfax in the Presidential chair.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN GIANTS.—An extraordinary statement has appeared in print, in reference to a race of old giants, in the neighborhood of the Rocky Mountains. It appears that on Meagher's Bar, opposite Nevada, there have been recently discovered fossils which show that this part of the world was once peopled by a race of men ten and twelve feet high. They were imbedded about eight feet, in what might be termed a close diluvial deposit, and in what the configuration of the country indicates was once the eddy of a river. A jawbone, dug up, is double the size of an ordinary human jawbone, the width being fully five inches. It is in a perfect state of preservation so perfect, that, had it been of ordinary size, one would suppose that its owner had made his (or her?) exit from this vale of tears some 15 or 20 years ago. Not a tooth is lost. The discoverer considers, from a measurement of ribs and other bones, that the possessor must have been at least twelve feet high. The Montana Post gives currency to these and other particulars of this wonderful discovery.

THE DANGERS OF LIFE ON THE FRONTIER.—The Des Moines (Iowa) Register of August 27th says:

On Thursday evening last, Tristram Warren visited our office, on his way home from Nebraska to Wisconsin, and related the following facts, which are corroborated by evidence received by us since his visit: About three years since Warren removed with his family from Wisconsin to Nebraska Territory, and settled on Platte bottom, about thirty miles east from Fort Kearny. By hard labor he succeeded in erecting buildings, getting a piece of land into cultivation, and was beginning to realize the comforts of a frontier home, when on the 25th of July last, his neighborhood was visited by a band of Indians, his premises robbed of about twenty-five head of horses and cattle—all he had—his house was stripped of every valuable, except a feather bed, his wife murdered, and one of his children severely wounded. The band of Indians first made their appearance from the north side of the Platte, attacked the ranches of John and Peter Campbell, which were located about three hundred yards from each other, and about half a mile from the house of Warren. From the house of Peter Campbell they took his daughter, seventeen years of age, with them a prisoner, and robbed [illegible] of clothing and everything of value [illegible] portable. They then proceeded to [illegible] John Campbell, where they seized a [illegible] daughter of Peter, aged fourteen years, a girl twelve years old, and two boys, one aged four and the other six years. They took with them as prisoners all these children and about $100 in currency, and forty-two English sovereigns which they found in the house. The youngest girl escaped and ran to the house of Warren. Warren was absent at a mill about five miles distant, and his wife immediately sent one of her little girls with Miss Campbell to arouse the neighborhood. While these children were gone the Indians made their appearance. Mrs. Warren barred the door, but the redskins obtained an entrance by coming down the chimney. As they made their entrance into the room she opened the door and attempted to escape, bearing a babe in her arms, but a savage who had been stationed at the door, shot her in the breast, killing her instantly, and the blood nearly covered the babe at her breast. The oldest son, a lad about eight years of age, was shot and severely wounded in the thigh, but by lying still he escaped further injury. As soon as the Indians had robbed the house and taken their departure, the wounded boy crawled to where the babe lay, found it was uninjured, and bore it to where three other children had been concealed. The anguish of the father on returning and finding his wife murdered, one of his children maimed and home and premises robbed of the earnings of years, no tongue can describe. Gathering his motherless family together, he succeeded by the aid of his neighbors, in getting a team, and by the kindly contributions of the inhabitants along the route, reached this city on his return to his old home in Wisconsin.

WHAT GOVERNOR ANDREW THINKS.—The following from the Boston Transcript is to be taken, we suppose, as an authoritative statement of the opinions held by Governor Andrew on the political issues of the day:

As various influential newspapers in different sections of the country have [illegible] name of John A. Andrew with the Ca[illegible] President as one of his possible app[illegible] the resignation of the membe[illegible] Cabinet, we have taken pains [illegible] exposition of his views (frequently [illegible] private conversation), by which the [illegible] infer the extreme improbabil[illegible] Johnson would ever take into his [illegible] statesman holding such opinions as [illegible] Governor of Massachusetts.

In his valedictory to the [illegible] this State, ex-Governor Andrew [illegible] the Southern States should be [illegible] by the Checkmate.

The contest for the Marshalship of this city is ended, and the corruptionists are defeated and rebuked. It is one thing to make bargains in a caucus, whereby all honesty and decency, as well as the rights of the people are trampled upon; but it is another thing to obtain the sanction of the Courts for such a proceeding. This the partisan majority of the Council has discovered. It is decided by our highest tribunal that such practises as we have witnessed in this city since the present Council was chosen, will not be tolerated. The city offices are not to be put up for sale to serve private interests or party ends. Places of preferment are not to be used as trading capital by a corrupt faction. That matter is settled. The opponents of the factious majority of the Council are completely vindicated, and those who have been engaged in disgraceful and reprehensible transactions about the city offices are informed that such games as they have been playing cannot win. It is decided that a person who may happen to be a member of the Council cannot, by disposing of his vote in such a manner as to advantage others, buy his way into a more profitable office; and it must give all good citizens satisfaction to know that the first attempt at this scheme has been so completely foiled. The odium of this transaction ought to utterly condemn those who have been engaged in it. If it does not they will escape a just retribution.

One of the five has already got his deserts. Let us be thankful for that. For more than a year he has been engaged in transactions of a suspicious character to secure his own advantage, and he gets nothing for his pains but the knowledge that he has lost everything which all true men highly prize. He was in a position where he could force compliance with his demands, and he actually compelled those members of the Council with whom partisan considerations are the highest motive to vote for him what he asked. They got his vote and accomplished the object they had in view; but the Courts have interposed their authority between him and the object he sought, and he is now in a position where it will not give him much trouble to compute his gains. His excellent friends in the Democratic party have got all they want out of him, and there is no doubt that many of them are secretly glad of his failure. They have used him to the full extent of their designs, and how we give him permission to quit their employ and their service just as soon as it pleases him.

When he was railing against his master because he was preferred instead of himself, he asked "by my faith I know my price, and I know I deserve a place." So with a person who has been seeking the Marshalship of this city. He knew his price, and the office he sought he valued at that exact sum. His estimate of himself was that he was worth no worse a place, and those who treat with him had to come to his terms. Of a truth every man must be allowed the privilege of putting a price on his own wares.

To secure position is this person has forsaken the principles he once professed, abandoned his party and its men, and come to trusts reposed in him. He has got his proper reward. Thus may it ever be with those who act on the idea that they are elected to responsible positions solely that they may be enabled to secure their own profit and advancement.

Intelligent Investments.—Simple Eugene is out in the organ of which he is "card," in which he complains bitterly that when he makes an ass of himself other people are laughing. We ought to have known that if such a one was made sport of he would put up his lip and cry. Poor boy! He has come down from his gambler, and blubbers in the true primary style. That "explosion" has actually occurred.

Montana Territory.—Montana Territory in the late election was entitled to three Representatives. Edgerton county (Helena three) cast 1,000 votes giving a Democratic majority of 131. Madison county (Virginia City) gave 1,000 votes, giving a Republican majority of 100. The Democratic delegate to Congress was elected by about 700 majority in a total vote of 2,100.

The defeat of two-thirds of the partisan majority in the City Council was necessary for a public example. This is the consideration which gives the late decision of the Supreme Court its chief value. It cannot but result in good to administration-robbing partisans and venal grabbers that such things will not be allowed.

Gold and Silver.—The Petersburg Ensign has the following:

The first favorable announcement on the discovery of the new mines near Boise, which we have noticed before as promising a practical calculation for turning the line very into profit. As a great many of our citizens already have "feet" there, it may become a matter of practical consideration that a good road, or pack trail, be immediately opened to those mines; in order to facilitate the transportation of supplies to the miners from the nearest point, and also to furnish a mode of speedy and safe retreat in case of an attack from an outnumbering band of Indians. The approach of winter further adds a motive to the opening a road connecting the settlements of the valley directly with those mines, as they are reported as to render either profitable prospecting or mining, in the winter season, very laborious and dangerous if indeed practical; on account of the unusual depth of snow in that region, being near the summit of the Cascade mountains. Presence of gold and silver in the quartz in paying quantities in that section, and what remains to be done will, we hope, be soon, and receive the benefits. This can only fairly be commenced the present season in view of the richness of the gold-bearing quartz in this region, we have in our office specimens from some of the ledges in which numerous particles of gold are visible to the naked eye. We have lately received specimens from R. W. Hale, who was among the first discoverers of these different ledges, all of which prospect rich in gold. Mr. P. Peters, who has taken considerable pains to ascertain the extent and appearance of some of the mines, assures us that the quantity of gas in rich quartz as this which we have mentioned appears to be inexhaustible."

The Canby's Position.—It seems to be pretty evident that the President has gained nothing for his rebel protegé of the Carolinas by removing Sickles to make room for Canby. The latter is carrying out Sickles' orders which are perfectly in accordance with the spirit of the reconstruction act. The following in regard to Gen. Canby's position is from the Washington Chronicle of Aug. 30th:

Gen. Canby, who had just been appointed to the command of the Second Military District, remarked yesterday, in conversation with a friend, that he was not a political partisan, but that he had studied the reconstruction laws thoroughly and approved them, and that he considered their faithful execution essential to the welfare of the nation. He thought it the duty of the Southern people to accept the terms offered them. He is also said to have expressed his appreciation of the utility of the Freedmen's Bureau, and his intention of giving its agents all proper and necessary aid in the execution of their work.

Homicide.—The Boise Statesman of the 19th, says:

Joe Crabb runs horses and keeps a faro bank. Hugh Murphy sometimes drove mules, drank whisky, and "bucked" at the "bank." Last Tuesday night Murphy was drinking considerably, "bucking" some, and on his "high old hoss." Consequence, difficulty between Murphy and Crabb about twenty dollars which the former had lost at the "bank." High words followed; a scuffle, in which Crabb beat Murphy over the head with a six-shooter, and is supposed to have shot him. The ball entered the right side of the neck and ranged to the left and downward, probably through the heart. He lived but a few seconds. Crabb was immediately arrested and confined in jail Tuesday night, and an examination was had before Justice Gillespie yesterday.

STATE ITEMS.

John S Love, an old resident of Jacksonville, died at that place on the 18th inst.

The Columbia Press says that the report of the murder of John Crayton, Government contractor, by the Indians, is untrue.

The next session of the Douglas county Educational Association will be held at Wilbur, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 26th, 27th and 28th days of the present month.

The Umatilla paper of the 21st inst has the following: Last week some clothes were brought into town with blood on the coat, and a bullet hole through the hat. They were found on the road above Swift's. Sheriff Maddock proceeded to the spot, and after some searching, found the body of a murdered man. A letter was found in the coat addressed to some one in the Dalles, but it being written in Portuguese, no one was able to get any information therefrom. It was sent to the Dalles where, probably, Sheriff Ferguson will be able to learn who the man was. The body appeared to be in a state of decay. It is wrapped in mystery, as all such transactions are, but in this instance, it looks as though the murderer, for some reason, had moved the clothes from the spot where the body lay, to the road, some time after the deed.

Warren's Diggings.

The Lewiston Journal publishes the following letter from this locality, dated Sept. 6th:

On the last day of August, 1867, the one stamp mill belonging to Sherman & Myers was set in motion, and gave general satisfaction, making 78 strokes per minute. There were quite a number present to witness the result of what was called Sanderson's folly or the hash grinder. You know there are plenty of persons ever ready to make light of any undertaking that they are not interested in, themselves; but sir, in this one little construction, I think I discern the future of our little town of Washington. As C. A. Soars said in his speech on the eve that the mill derived the name of Alpha: "The steamer constructed by Fulton was named by the community "Fulton's folly," and from that one little machine emanated all the floating palaces on our waters. So may our hills be studded with quartz mills from this one little structure."

Mrs. Wood broke the bottle and gave the name, which was received with three hearty cheers.

Mr. Sherwin has a small barrel amalgamator which Capt. Williams has been kind enough to show him how to construct, with the intent of saving the silver.

The Alpha will commence her regular work in a few days.

Mr. J. A. Skinner has about 1,500 pounds of rock from the Winfield Scott, all well roasted, and delivered alongside of the place, which will be the first place for the miniature mill.

Mrs. Wood panned out the first pan of rock that was crushed, and the result was $7 75 in gold. The rock was the specimens which have been burned in the blacksmith shop during the summer, and not suiting the parties, they were thrown aside for something more choice. The amount of rock panned out was about five pounds.

Our noble friend, A. H. Sanderson, gave all the credit of the enterprise to Sherwin & Myers, like his noble self; but should the camp ever turn out prosperous, I for one will ever say we owe the result to the perseverance and firmness of our best citizen, A. H. Sanderson. Not one noble object is ever started in this place toward the development of our camp or district, but the Major is first, last, and all the time ready with his money and influence to keep it in motion.

WORK ON THE RIO JACET.

W. Pierce and John Hanna are at work on the Rio Jacet. They intend to get out 100 tons of rock, and many here will be doing the same on other leads this winter, if they can obtain provisions enough for the winter.

We cannot look for aid from our merchants, as they had rather see the dollars first. There are plenty of willing hands to work if they can obtain subsistence.

HELPING OURSELVES.

J. A. Skinner and E. R. Sherwin intend taking out rock from the Winfield Scott during the winter. So you see, we are bound to try and help ourselves, if perseverance and prudence will succeed. We have got tired asking for aid from the capitalists of San Francisco and Portland, and if they still hold off, we will try and see that they pay for the whistle when they feel ready to piggy on it.

WILLIAM'S & MAXWELL'S MILL.

Messrs. Williams & Maxwell are progressing finely with their mill, and if nothing happens we will have a chance to test some of our leads before the cold weather sets in.

Shooting Affray.—A shooting affray resulting in the death of two men, occurred at Helena, (M. T.) on the 2d inst. The following particulars are from the Post:

A fatal shooting affray occurred at Cave Gulch on Thursday morning last, under circumstances as follows: Wm. N. Duffy and his partner had done some work for J. M. Sigler, for which the latter had paid the partner and taken his receipt. On the morning in question, Duffy was somewhat intoxicated; and demanded $16 of Sigler, which he claimed as a balance due from him on the work. Sigler denied that he owed him anything, when Duffy drew his revolver and compelled the former to cross the street from Crapo's saloon to Frazier & Barnes' store, and under threats of taking his life, made him weigh out the money. After the money was weighed, Sigler requested Frazier to keep it until he went and got the receipt, which the latter did. While he was gone, Duffy demanded the money, but Frazier refused to give it to him until after the return of Sigler, and Duffy went out. While away, Sigler returned, showed the receipt and his money was returned. He was very excited and angered at the treatment he received, and while standing at the store door saw Duffy coming up the street with his revolver cocked in his hand. When Duffy arrived within a few feet of him, two shots were heard almost simultaneously, and directly afterwards two others. Duffy fell, having received two shots, one in the arm and the other in the abdomen. Sigler walked into the store and said that he was wounded, when on examination it was found that a ball had entered his breast near the region of the heart. Duffy lived half an hour and Sigler survived about one hour and a half after receiving the fatal shot. Sigler, it will be recollected, participated in the affray in Cave Gulch last winter over some mining ground, in which four men were killed, and notwithstanding the prominent part he took in the affairs of that section is represented to have been a quiet and well disposed man. Duffy will be recollected by many of your readers in Alder gulch, especially in Nevada City, as an individual who figured extensively in nearly all of the fights that occurred in that locality in the summer of 1865. He came from Boise, and his scarred and beaten physiognomy was well known throughout both Territories.

A Newly Married Man Compelled to Kneel on his Late Wife's Grave and ask her Forgiveness.—A jailor at Donaldsville, Louisiana, who had buried his wife in the early part of May, married again in three or four weeks afterwards. This so shocked the moral sense of the community that a public meeting was called, and a procession formed and marched to his residence and took him out. After being marched out of his door-yard to the tune of the "Dead March," with lighted candles on each side of him, the procession formed, music in front—the latter consisting of oil-cans horns, tin pans, and a large bell, carried on the shoulders of two of the party, which was tolled continually, whilst cries of mirth and jollity tended to enliven the scene. After traversing the principal streets, and thoroughly arousing everybody in town not engaged in it, they proceeded to the final act, it now being near midnight. After forming properly, the procession marched to the cemetery, where the poor was finished by his kneeling down at the grave and asking pardon of his late wife's spirit; after which the party proceeded to a saloon, and taking a drink at his expense, he was permitted to join his newly made wife—this being the third marriage bond he has entered into.

Effect of Johnson's Course.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican of August 30th, says:

"Nobody has been able to account satisfactorily for the strange course of the President. We suspect he has been secretly bought up by the Republican National Committee to help in the fall elections. His "swinging round the circle" last year, secured splendid triumphs for the Republicans. This year they were somewhat anxious about the fall elections until the President came to their aid. His conflict with General Grant and the Department Commanders has now made everything secure. There is fresh talk about impeachment, but the truth is we cannot spare the President from the arena just yet; there would be a fearful state of political indifference if he did not "come down" to disturb the waters occasionally. Keep him in the White House another year and the Republicans will be sure of the next Presidency, whoever is their candidate.

Quantrell.—The following statement in regard to Quantrell, the rebel guerrilla and murderer, is communicated to a St. Louis paper:

"In your paper of yesterday you say that Quantrell, the ex-guerrilla, is in Mexico, in the commission business, under the assumed name of Samuel Anderson. This is a mistake. Quantrell and forty men came to Kentucky in the fall of 1864. He was mortally wounded in a fight, captured and taken to Louisville, and there died in prison under an assumed name. General Joe Shelby thought he was killed and buried in Woodford county, until I told him different. I was in prison with two of his men."

FROM PUGET SOUND.

A Victoria paper publishes the following:

It is said that the United States Navy Yard site has been selected at Bainbridge Island, near Port Townsend. The principal fortification will be made at Point Wilson, at the entrance of what is known as Admiralty Inlet, at the head of Fuca Straits. The inlet at this point is not more than four miles across to Whidby's Island, where a high bluff faces Point Wilson, and which will also probably be fortified. Three miles south of the fortification, are the town, bay and beautiful harbor of Port Townsend. The second fortification will be at "The Narrows," about fifty miles up the Sound; the shores here are so near each other as to render it impossible for anything to pass when disturbed from either of the high bluffs towering over them.

The ship builders on the Sound are preparing for extensive orders next spring. Three yards are already in operation, and four vessels are on the stocks—two of the number ships. The cheapness of material on Puget Sound and the numerous splendid sites that abound on its shores, hold out great inducements to California builders to establish their yards on the Sound instead of as heretofore freighting the timber to San Francisco and building the ships there. A new ship-yard is projected by Capt. George Walker at Long Bay, near Olympia, W. T. The Nanhaime Buddie is still lying on the beach at Port Madison undergoing repair.

The War on the Hordor.

The Montana Post of the 7th inst. has the following:

The several communications published in to-day's paper in regard to the Indians on the Yellowstone tributaries, leave no doubt that the war has begun in earnest. The dispatches confirm the reports of hostilities near Forts Smith and Phil. Kearney, and that the cloud of war, long gathering and portentous, has burst in relentless fury on our borders. The appearance of the Indians on the Boulder brings them 25 miles nearer our valley than when they killed Weston and Hodges a few days ago. The number of men who have left Fort Smith for the Gallatin, and the number missing who were known to be prospecting in that region, leaves no doubt that the inhuman thirst for blood has been gratified if not satiated by the savages. While the heroism of Neil Howie and his little party in going out in search of Weston and Hodges and their arrival in time to save the three men surrounded and almost exhausted by hunger and wounds, cannot be too highly commended, or a grateful people express unmerited approbation of their gallantry. We confess that it is with some misgivings of disaster that we await further information from his small and divided command. That he was within twenty-five miles of the Stillwater, an easy night's ride, where several hundred Crows were encamped a few days previous, and that the spirit of the men and their leader would give assurance that the daybreak following the date of Col. Howie's note would find him and his fifty men on the banks of the Stillwater, is not to be contemplated without some apprehension that they might be too largely outnumbered. It is only 12 miles however from Camp Meagher to Boulder Creek, and in ten or twelve hours from the time Howie sent his messenger, Capt. Nelson, with the reinforcements, could be at the place where Howie left his pack train. The chief danger lies in the thorough acquaintance the Crows have with that country, and their opportunity for concentrating on the three detachments separately. Captain La Mott has 150 regulars at Bozeman,; Col. Howie should at this time have 250 volunteers, and these forces once together, they are amply strong to drive all the Crows across the Big Horn. The war, for months kept away from our valleys by the presence of the Montana volunteers, is sweeping up closer and closer, and it is with honest pride in our boys and confidence in their leader that we learn they have met the savages half way, even with the little command depleted by absence on furlough, given on re-enlistment, to a handful scarce strong enough to hold Fort Meagher. May the laurels of victory they so well deserve perch on their banners.

What to Take.—An exchange says: "A lady of our acquaintance, young, lovely and intelligent called on a celebrated physician to do 'something' for a rush of blood to the head:

"I have been doctoring myself," said the languid fair one, with a smile, to the bluff, though kind M. D., while he was feeling her pulse.

"Well, what have you taken?"

"Why, I have taken Brandreth's Pills, Parr's Pills, Strasbourg's Pills, Sands' Sarsaparilla, Jayne's Expectorant, used Dr. Sherman's Lozenges and Plaster, and—"

"My heavens! madame," interrupted the astonished doctor, "all those do your complaint no good!"

"No, then what shall I take?" pettishly inquired the patient.

"Take!" exclaimed the doctor eyeing her from head to foot—"take!" exclaimed he, after a moment's reflection, "Why, take off your corsets!"

Fight between Nez Perces and Snakes.—The Lewiston Journal of the 19th says:

We learn that a fight recently occurred between a portion of the Nez Perce tribe of Indians and a number of the Snake tribe, on Snake river, beyond Whitebird. Some of the former tribe had come to his residence and brought as trophies some of the scalps taken from the Snake Indians, over which they had a dance and general jubilee. They also had with them several prisoners, among whom were two small children.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE INSANE ASYLUM.—The following is a copy of the annual report of the Inspecting Physician of the Insane Asylum:

PORTLAND, Sept 25, 1867.

To His Excellency George L. Woods, Governor of Oregon.—SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report of the condition of the Insane Asylum for the year ending August 31st, 1867.

In compliance with my official duties I have visited the Asylum monthly for the purpose of examining the patients and inspecting the premises, and to see that the contractors, Drs. Hawthorne and Loryea, fulfilled their part of the agreement made with Governor A. C. Gibbs on the part of the State.

The following is a statement of the number of patients in the Asylum at the beginning of the year, and the number now receiving care and treatment.

	Males.	Females.	Total.
In Asylum Sept. 1st, 1866.....	58	21	79
Admitted in course of the year.....	21	12	33
Discharged, including deaths and escapes.....	11	8	19
Whole number.....	79	33	112
In Asylum August 31st, 1867.....	68	25	93
Discharged, cured.....	4	7	11
Died.....	4	1	5
Escaped.....	3	—	3

Of the whole number treated, ten per cent. were cured and restored to health as useful members of society, and including the three who escaped, all have since done well, the per centage will appear still. Five deaths occurred during the year—really a small number considering their condition—constituting only a fraction over 4 per cent., indicating the excellence of the sanitary condition of the institution.

The deaths resulted from the following causes: One exhaustion from acute mania; three from softening of the brain, and one from epilepsy.

The nationalities of the remaining patients are as follows:

Americans.....	55	Half-breed Indians.....	2
Irish.....	15	French.....	1
Germans.....	8	Spanish.....	1
Canadians.....	3	Scotch.....	1
Norwegians.....	2	English.....	1
Chinese.....	2	Jew.....	1
Total.....	93

The vocations are represented as follows:

Farmers.....	15	Laborers.....	16
Miners.....	2	Sailors.....	2
Machinists.....	1	Soldiers.....	2
Carpenter.....	1	Tailor.....	1
Bricklayer.....	1	Plasterer.....	1
Merchant.....	1	Shoemaker.....	1
Hotel keeper.....	1	Baker.....	1
Housewives.....	17	Unknown.....	1
Total.....	93

Among the unknown are included eight females, four boys who are quite young and never followed my occupation; the mental condition of the others is such as to [illegible] for them incapable of giving any information, and the standing committee has furnished no account thereof; but it is fair to presume that nearly all belong to the laboring class.

The statistics show that the largest proportion belongs to the laboring classes, and the natural inference is that continuous physical labor, without an adequate amount of mental labor or recreation, is one of the most frequent causes having a tendency to bring on insanity. In the different mechanical pursuits, where more mental labor is required, the tendency to insanity decreases; and as we proceed a step further, we find as men have still more mental labor to perform and less physical, the tendency is still less; showing clearly that in order to maintain a healthy condition of the mind, mental labor and physical recreation must be practised more than is now common among the laboring classes. And if we would improve the mental condition of our laboring population—lessen the tendency to insanity, we must endeavor to ameliorate their physical labor and increase their mental culture—i. e., give them less work and more recreation.

Intemperance is one of the most frequent causes of insanity, and many are our miserable lives in Lunatic Asylums, brought on by this cause alone.

I will mention one other cause, and that is self abuse; a cause against which all are able to guard if they will only make the effort. I am sorry to say that a large proportion of the patients in the Asylum were either directly or indirectly caused by this disgusting vice.

Of the other causes, such as pecuniary losses, domestic affliction, religious excitement, etc., the per centage is very small.

Quite a large proportion of the cases remaining are chronic, and treatment will have but little effect on them. All such I would recommend to be kept apart from the others. Recent cases and those in whom improvement has already begun, when resulting from local causes, special treatment would prove decidedly beneficial. There should be a distinction made in the prices paid between the two classes. This plan would result in lessening the expenses and individual benefit to the patients.

The treatment in most cases has been hygienic, and this accompanied by kindness and moderate restraint, in many cases answers a very good purpose. The success of the treatment will bear favorable comparison with similar institutions in other States, when we take into consideration the two exciting causes to which special attention has been called in this report, predominating to a greater extent on this coast than in the Atlantic States. And in essence there of the ratio of insane in proportion to the inhabitants is greater on this coast.

Last spring several rods of beautiful fir grove adjoining the Asylum was inclosed with a high board fence, and a number of swings and other fixtures for the amusement of the patients, were erected, affording them a good deal of enjoyment. Ball playing and other diverting games have been introduced in which some of the inspects take part at times, all of which has had a tendency to render them more cheerful and contented.

The food is of a good quality, sufficient in quantity and well cooked. The changes are frequent enough to prevent sour bills of fare, and promote good physical health.

The following articles constitute the diet-list: Mutton-beef, pork and mutton; also salt salmon. Vegetables—potatoes, cabbage, turnips, onions, tomatoes, rice, beans, peas, lettuce, etc. Drink—Coffee and tea. Fruits of various kinds, raw while in season and stewed when out of season. Bread of the best quality is supplied in abundance. Sugar and molasses are furnished with every meal.

The interior of the building is constantly kept clean and thoroughly ventilated. The dormitory is well arranged, always clean, with a neat, comfortable bed in each apartment with one or two exceptions where two beds are in one room. In each ward is a large bathing tub, with faucets attached to pipes for both cold and warm water, all of which are in good working order. This is a great convenience and adds much to health.

A serious objection, and one requiring change, is the location of the water closets, which are at present in side apartments, next to the entrance to each ward. The proper place for them is at the farther end of each ward, where all the foetid effluvia arising from them in the wards, could be obviated. Here they now are this cannot be done. I would recommend this change.

The Dispensary is kept in good order, with a moderate supply of medicines, which are fresh and of a good quality.

The dining room, kitchen and bake-house, with their necessary fixtures, are all in good condition, and some of the latest improved utensils are provided.

The Store Room is well filled with flour, sugar, coffee, tea, molasses, rice, beans, peas, tobacco, blankets, shoes, and all kinds of clothing. Clothing for men's wear is of Oregon cloth, and made up by the female patients. Female wear is chiefly cotton domestics, and made by themselves.

Sewing and knitting is the principal employment of the females, affording them light employment to relieve the monotony of their confinement. A limited number of the convalescent males are taken out to work on the farm; and it would be an advantage if more were so employed; but the small number of attendants will not admit it.

The supply of water comes from an excellent spring of fresh water, which is pumped into a large reservoir, and is constantly kept full to meet any emergency or accident arising from fire. The reservoir is on a tower elevated above the building.

During my official connection with this institution little discipline has been required, and what has been exercised to has been of the mildest form; but four instances have occurred to my knowledge that required any. Several instances have occurred when it became necessary to confine the hands of patients, to prevent them from injuring others, and a number have had to be confined to their rooms for several days. Kind treatment goes a great way with that class of cases, and has given the best satisfaction wherever the plan was strictly adhered to.

Trusting that my duties have been satisfactorily performed and meet with your approbation and of my fellow-citizens of Oregon, I respectfully submit the report first to your Excellency and then to the people.

J. S. OILTNER, M. D.,
Inspecting Physician of the Insane Asylum of the State of Oregon.

NAPLE CREEK MINES.—Mr. Jacob Gentle, of La Grande, who is at present stopping in this city, informs us that the La Grande Gold and Silver Mining Company's mill at Eagle Creek is running with great success. This mill is working on rock from the Gem of the Mountain ledge, which is one of the richest gold bearing ledges in the northern mining country. The tunnel in which the company is working has been carried to the main ledge and the rock is found very much richer as the depth of the tunnel is increased. During the present month, the company will take out not less than $3,000. The mill has five stamps. The Humboldt Company, claimants also on the Gem ledge, is getting in a ten stamp mill. All interested are in excellent spirits and much pleased with their prospects; they feel certain that they have a "dead thing" and there is none of the stock for sale. Mr. G. says the town of La Grande is improving and business is livelier than for some time at both La Grande and Union-town.

RECORDER'S COURT.—The following were the proceedings in the Recorder's Court yesterday:

State of Oregon vs. Adam F. Aikon; charge, setting up a gambling device and gambling. This arrest was made upon the complaint of John Davis. It appeared from the evidence that two men Henry Moseley, night engaged in a game of poker in the upper room of a new saloon called "Sportsman's Hall," on Yamhill street, between Second and Third streets. Davis was a spectator, or was cognizant of the game, and lent one of the parties $80 to bet on a big hand, which, of course, he was bilked out of. After the examination of a number of witnesses, the prosecution failed to identify Aikon as one of the gamblers, and he was discharged.

State of Oregon vs. Z. Wilson, same charge; examination continued till this morning and bonds for the appearance of the accused fixed at $250.

AWNINGS.—The splendid awnings in front of the O. S. N. Co's brick buildings are nearly completed and as they are decidedly artistic in construction, the public may be curious to know who are the architects. Mr. J. S. Farmer, blacksmith, made the iron brackets—a very nice job; and Mr. W. H. Brackett, carpenter, is doing the wood work. The awnings are a little the neatest things of the kind ever put up in this city.

TEMPERANCE MEETING TO-NIGHT.—The temperance meeting at East Portland, this evening, will be addressed by ex-Gov. A. C. Gibbs, Rev. C. C. Stratton, Mrs. Martin, Charles Devine, S. A. Moreland, C. Beal and others. Music by the Temperance Glee Club. It is expected there will be an interesting time and maybap, a temperance revival.

SALEM DIRECTORY.—We have received a copy of the Salem Directory for 1867, published by Wm. Morgan of the Unionist. It contains a directory of business men and various statistics of the city, the city charter and ordinances, tables of distances, a history of the Willamette University, etc., etc. As an interesting chapter in the early history of education in Oregon, we will take an early occasion to quote from the latter. From the statistical matter of this book we find that our capital city has 6 district schools, with an average attendance of 295 pupils; 7 church buildings, 3 public libraries with something over 4000 volumes; 2 Masonic lodges, 2 Odd Fellows lodges; and 2 Good Templars lodges. Among the silver tears, we notice quite a number of well known Portland homes.

SAWING BY STEAM.—Mr. J. W. Cook of the bag factory and packing establishment on North Front street, has purchased a neat little engine by which he intends soon to run his several sewing machines. His work is rather heavy for "foot-power," and as his business has increased to very considerable proportions he finds it necessary, or at least profitable, to employ an independent and tireless power. It is not long since the sack-making business of this city was easily done by hand sewing. Mr. Cook's is only one of many establishments of the kind now in successful operation; and so much has the business grown that some other than man power, for driving the machines, if not necessary, is, at least, very desirable. Evidences of prosperity, this.

EXCELSIOR SODA WORKS.—This pioneer manufacturing establishment at No. 4, North Front street, has lately undergone some material improvements, and is now in full blast, turning out soda water as is soda water. Mr. Bigley, the proprietor, is an experienced manufacturer of this very pleasant beverage, and he gives the work his personal attention. Buyers can rely on every bottle sold as genuine, pure and healthy.

QUINBY.—The enterprising landlord of the American Exchange seems determined to keep fully up with all his competitors. As one help to this end he has just got out a new coach, in which he invites everybody to take a free ride to and from his hotel. This is now the metropolitan style, and a very good style it is, as compared with that of a few years since in Portland.

NEW BOOKS.—The Portland Library has just received the following new books: Beyond the Mississippi, A. D. Richardson; Curious Myths of the Middle Ages, S. Baring Gould; Louise of Prussia and her Times, Milbach; A Romance of the Republic, L. Maria Child; Jacques Bonneval, by author of Mary Powell.

SADDLES AND HARNESS.—Mr. J. B. Congle, No. 92 Front street, has on hand, just from the East, a very large stock of saddlery, hardware, all varieties of harness, collars, carriages wagon whips, etc. He also keeps a complete assortment of similar articles of home-make, leather, etc. Give him a call.

AGAINST ROSENHEIM.—Yesterday forenoon, Mr. Hoyt, the present City Marshal, received the following telegram from Richard Williams, Esq., clerk of the Supreme Court: "Rosenheim vs. Hoyt; affirmed on the ground of incompatibility of offices." So the aspirations of Mr. Rosenheim are nipped.

FOR THE WILLAMETTE.—Of the seven hundred tons freight, brought up by the Sierra Nevada, we notice that a much large proportion than usual, is destined for the Willamette valley. The Senator takes every morning a heavy freight.

LINN COUNTY FAIR.—The second annual fair of Linn county, will open on Monday, the 30th inst., and continue to the evening of October 3d. We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to all the privileges of the grounds.

LAUNCHED.—Capt. Snow, of the Couch, informs us that when he was at Rainier yesterday, on route from Astoria to Portland, the builders of the new steamer for the Cowlitz river, were making preparations to launch her, in the afternoon.

FOUND.—Found and left at this office for the owner, a bond and deed, both executed in favor of the North Yamhill Educational Company. The proper custodian or owner can have them by calling at the OREGONIAN office.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per steamer Senator, from Oregon City, yesterday: 250 boxes apples, 750 qr sks flour, 7 bales woolen goods, 30 sks feed, 4 cases and 2 trunks mdse.

THE STEAMERS.—The selling of the Sierra Nevada has been postponed to four o'clock P. M., Thursday. The Eliza Anderson will sail for Victoria this evening.

TREASURE RECEIPT.—Wells, Fargo & Co. received by the steamer from the Cascades, yesterday, $35,000 in treasure.

HERMAN BROS. will open to-day a fine lot of Fashionable Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods, just received by steamer Sierra Nevada.

It may be worthy of note, as an indication of the times, that the Galena Gazette, the paper published in the place where Grant resided before the war, which is moreover said to be the only paper that Grant regularly reads, and which seems to have always maintained very intimate relation with the ancient tanner of Galena, is strongly urging Grant as a candidate for the next Presidency, on the platform of peace, conciliation and fraternity. The Gazette discusses the subject in a recent able leader, inquiring into the kind of a man the country wants for the next President. It argues at length that we do not want a man who "will imagine himself to be the State," nor an ambitious man, "who will imagine that the people were made for him," nor "do we want a cunning, crafty, confidence operator, who thinks that politics is only a game of thimble-rig. Nor do we want a man whose whole aim will be to fan and keep alive the embers of discord. In short, that we want neither knave nor fool, nor coward." "But," says the Gazette, "we do want an honest man for our next President, who has faith in the potency of strong-handed and cool-headed justice"; and it then goes on to eulogize warmly an unnamed individual, adding at the close: "His name we need not mention. The whole world knows it. It will never be forgotten. The people demand the use, for the best good of the country, of his uncommon Executive power." All this is of interest as appearing in the Galena Gazette.

WHY THE FAMILY DYE COLORS ARE USED.—The celebrated Family Dye Colors of Howe & Stevens are in almost universal use.—1st, Because they are the best in the market; 2d, They cost but little; 3d, Can be used in any household with the ordinary utensils of the kitchen; 4th, Include every color that is wanted; 5th, Never injure the most delicate fabrics; 6th, Save the necessity of getting new garments. ☞ We have but little confidence in the trumpet tongued statements of the proprietors of advertised medicines generally, but we are forced to concur in the opinion, uniformly expressed by all who have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, that it is a very valuable article, and one that it would be well for every household to have at hand, in case of bruises, scalds, burns, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera, fever and ague, and the host of diseases, external and internal, which it is adapted to cure or alleviate. No article of medicine ever attained to such unbounded popularity and extensive diffusion. It has penetrated to every part, even the most remote, of the known world, bearing with it its healing influences more potent than those of the spices of Arabia the blest." We are informed by our principal druggists, that they sell more of this article for exportation than any or all others, and that the demand is constantly increasing.—Salem Observer.

We should not suffer from a Cough, which a few doses of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL will cure. Time, comfort, health, are all saved by it.

☞ BRONCHITIS OR CHRONIC SORE THROAT.—It is attended with irritation of the bronchial tubes, which convey the air we breathe into the lungs. This irritation produces sore throat, hoarseness, coughing, and sometimes spitting of matter streaked with blood. If it is neglected it will extend down to the lungs, and settle into confirmed consumption. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will be found a most valuable remedy for curing this disease, and prevent its running into Consumption.—Sold by dealers in family medicines generally.

Love, the Avenger

I had only returned from Australia a few days when I fell in, by one of those curious coincidences which people won't believe in novels, and which so often occur in real life, with a man whom I had not seen for ten years, and whom I had lost all trace of. He was Philip Chasemore, a surgeon whose life and abilities had been devoted to the obscure well doing of a country practice, although his abilities were worthy of a more brilliant sphere of action. And I specially wished to see him, because he had been the intimate college friend and companion of a man who was the admiration of most of the men in the university during my time, their admiration being only equaled by their perplexity for the man in question—Gerald Staunceol—"Firework Gerald," as he was surnamed from his erratic genius—was a person very unique in his way. With the most brilliant abilities and some of the best qualities, he united to these others proportionably bad. Generous, courteous, high-spirited, free of money, time, and interest on his friend's behalf, and the life and soul of every circle wherein he chose to exhibit his real wit and humor, he would change in a second from the frank brilliant bon vivant companion to an enemy fierce and passionate as a revengeful southron. The blaze in his dark eyes, and the white pallor of fury which overspread his face might be excited by a harmless speech at any moment, and his physical strength rendered him a most dangerous antagonist. No wonder, then, that with all their admiration of his good qualities, men felt insecure as on a volcano's edge when in Gerald Staundel's society.

His intellect was of the highest order. How often have I heard the brilliant epigrams and the lucid arguments flow in an unbroken stream from his lips when he was really warm in his work and nothing crossed his temper. The lore of Greece and Rome was as familiar and dear to him, with all his fondness for modern life and pursuits, as the latest odds and the gossip on the things of the day were to his companions. The power of concentration, argument, and fluent diction which he possessed—and he had little or none of the wordy crudity of youth—marked him out for distinction. So thought we all, and so, of course, did his father, a grand specimen of the English squire, a stately country gentleman, who supported his load of years like a boy, and carried his white head as gallant as a soldier of the old guard. He was the owner of the grey Staunoel Court, which stood surrounded by its beeches in the midst of a fair domain of three thousand acres, every tenant on which was prepared to fight any man who doubted that the young squire would be the best "member for the county" in Parliament.

When he and I quitted the university simultaneously, an advantageous offer in Australia caused us to separate. I heard nothing of "Fire work Gerald" for ten years. I had been thinking of him but a few hours back, for I landed at the place where ten years previously he had bid me good-bye, and the first man I lit on in London was one better able than most to tell me of Gerald's career.

"And you have never heard?" said Chasemore, gravely. "Why, his name was in most of the newspapers."

"Likely enough, but in the bush, newspapers were few and far between."

"It's a long story," said Chasemore. "Dine with me, and I'll tell you about it. I'm all alone, for my wife and children are at the seaside."

A few hours afterwards I found myself an inmate of a house which showed that its owner had a good London practice.

The cloth removed, my host pushed over the claret, and, drawing his chair to the fire, relapsed into silence; his cheery conversation ended, silence remained unbroken.

"Ah," he said suddenly, "I never feel so thankful for my own domestic happiness—I wish my Laura had been at home for you to make her acquaintance—as when I put together all the links, half forgotten, of poor Staunoel's story."

He rose and went to a drawer, took something out, and brought it to me. It was a leathern case, in which was a gold hunting watch, with one cover dented in by a heavy blow. I looked at the crest and saw it was the Staunoel falcon.

"There," said Chasemore, "there is my sole relic of poor Gerald. He gave it to me just before he died."

"Died?" I said, in utter bewilderment. "Do you mean that Gerald's dead?"

"Dead. Eight years ago."

I was thunderstruck, I had so keen a remembrance of the man we spoke of. His athletic form and splendid health was the envy of us all. He came from as long-lived and sound stock as could be found in England; and eight years ago he was just in the very first prime of mature manhood.

"Ah," said Chasemore, as if he guessed my thoughts, "no disease carried off Gerald: he was killed. I'll tell you all the story."

You know the generous offer the old squire made to me to reside as the salaried physician of the family at the Court till I could find a practice to suit me. To a young fellow fresh from college and hall, with a bran new diploma, the attractions of a handsome salary, perfect kindness, and equality with an ancient family, one of the first in the the country, were great temptations. I went. I was treated by every one as a friend and visitor, and shared all their invitations. My work was a sinecure—so I kept my hand in by prescribing for the village and aiding a little the over-worked Union medical officer. As for Gerald, he was my constant companion, shooting and riding, and filled up his working hours by studying for his political career; for he was no more farneant aspirant to legislative initials. You know what an intellect he had.

One of Mrs. Staunoel's oldest friends was a neighboring Mrs. Chetwynd, widow of an Indian major, who had left her with a fair income and a beautiful daughter. The widow and her daughter were constant visitors at Staunoel; in fact, they were on the most intimate footing, and Miss Chetwynd was "Lucy" to everybody (Gerald included) except myself. She was a brilliant blonde, with a very fair complexion, deep blue eyes, and a rosebud of a mouth. Tall, graceful, nicely formed, and light in her movements, she was a model of feminine vigorous grace.

The young lady was clever in her way. She drew well, talked French and Italian well, and danced well, but she had no taste for music or intellectual pursuits; therefore there wasn't much sympathy on that point between Miss Chetwynd and Gerald.

Gerald grew, I saw, fond of the beauty, and he was not the man to enter half-he artedly on any cause. Ere long he was passionately fond of Lucy Chetwynd. He told her so, and the girl confessed her penchant for him, for she was fond of him—very few girls would not have been so. And her mother, a thorough woman of the world, was alive to the eligibility of Mrs. Staunoel's eldest son—Mr. Staunoel being a rich and long-d[illegible]ended land owner. Generally you don't find the qualities united.

Lucy behaved very prettily. That's a queer word, isn't it? but it means just what I think. "Pretty," her demeanor, and manner, and speeches to him were: "loving," I never thought them. She was rather distrait at times when he used to try to make her as enthusiastic as himself over Byron and Edgar Poe, or Mozart's sonatas. Music to him was his life-blood; with her it was a "pretty" accomplishment. Still, to all appearance, they seemed to suit each other well. But the engagement seemed to be only a half one.

In the Summer down came a visitor. He had been a tuft at Christ Church in Gerald's time, and an ally of his on the river. He was a handsome man, rather insouciant in manner, and stupid in his ideas, or lack of them. But he was Raoul, fifth Viscount Desserton, and owner of half a Welsh county. That fact his admirers never forgot, and it threw a haze of romance and intellect round him. And the Viscount never forgot it himself.

He seemed very much struck with Lucy Chetwynd's beauty. Indeed, her tranquil loveliness was admirably adapted to catch admirers by a coup d' œil. And the young lady, even while knowing Gerald's fondness, and really fond of him herself, was not indisposed to receive a peer's glances of admiration. So matters went on for some days.

Mrs. Chetynd was an old campaigner. The glitter of a coronet dazzled her, and made her feel thankful that the engagement between her daughter and Staunoel was only an embryo one. And so she gave her daughter sundry secret instructions.

I don't think, looking back, that at first Lucy Chetwynd had any intention of jilting Gerald. But the girl's character was a weak one, and her love of admiration had been fostered from her childhood. She gradually listened more and more complacently to Desserton's compliments, for a season of utter dissipation at Paris had taught him one accomplishment, which was his sole one—saying pretty things neatly; and as Gerald was away day after day on his electioneering business—poor fellow, he'd come in at night and tell Lucy his day's adventures canvassing, as if she should share them—the poor had good chance of making play. And he made it.

The Squire and his son were too thoroughly high-bred to dream of treachery in a guest. Moreover, the generous spirit of Gerald led him to trust a former friend, and especially an university friend, implicitly; so he let the viscount escort Lucy hither and thither, with the full trustfulness of a confiding nature. But when those natures are deceived their wrath is terrible.

After about three weeks, and during Gerald's absence, Lord Desserton formally proposed to and was accepted by Miss Chetwynd. The secret was well kept, and, he having produced a license, they were married at a church near the parish. Then Lord and Lady Desserton went suddenly abroad, accompanied by Mrs Chetwynd.

The old Squire's first intimation of the news was a letter well and neatly written by Mrs Chetwynd. It dwelt much on the incompatibility of temper, etc., of her daughter and his son, and ended by every wish for Mr Gerald Staunoel's happiness. When Gerald returned flushed with success, (for he was returned by a majority,) his mother met him, and lovingly, tearfully broke the news to him. He listened to her, and then rushed into the old hall, where I was pacing up and down, sorely ill at ease. His face was flushed crimson, and his eyes glittering as you have seen them once or twice when he was in a fury. He seized my arm like a vice, and his working lips showed how the fierce wrath within choked his words.

"You heard the news, Chasemore," he said, at last. "You know what that villain has done. You know he's robbed me of Lucy. Smooth-tongued, lying, treacherous cur! Curse him! he's taken advantage of my miserable weakness and blighted my life."

"Hush, Gerald," said I; "the servants—"

I had no need to say more; the pride of race was more potent even than love or hate. He bit his lip till it bled, and his anguished face settled into stern calm.

"You are right," he murmured, "but if I live, I'll be revenged. Ah," and his voice broke, "my lost love! my lost love!"

After this he grew calm, and never spoke of the matter. Days, weeks and months passed on, and though Lord Desserton's name brought the mad fury into his eyes and a burst of curses from his lips, his fits of rage never turned against his false betrothed. To him she was a victim merely; he never blamed her in the slightest degree; his love softened, and his eyes filled at allusion to Lucy. But all his anger was reserved for Desserton. You know what his anger was, and can easily guess its intensity when roused by such wrong.

Two years rolled away. Gerald devoted himself to his parliamentary work. At the end of the time he asked me, in the Summer, to take a walking tour. We went, therefore into Wales, with our rods and knapsacks, and amid the glorious scenery, the good fishing, and the novelty of life, enjoyed ourselves much.

One day, as we were walking towards a small town, a carriage passed. Gerald started, turned pale, and gasped out one word—"Lucy!"

"Whose carriage was that?" said I to an English state minor passing.

"His lordship's," said the man, civilly. "He owns all our mines hereabouts."

"Not Lord Desserton?"

"Yes, sir."

Gerald Staunoel's face wore the old look of vengence which had gone from it so long. I tried to soothe him, but my efforts were useless.

"You heard me swear Chasomore," said he, sternly, "that I'd be revenged. You can do no good. You know me, and might guess that there fore."

I said nothing, and we reached our inn. All night long in the next room I heard my companion's restless steps, and in the morning he looked haggard with watching and care; but over his face there brooded that grim and savage look which boded the worst.

He ate nothing and after breakfast, asked the way to Desserton Hall. It lay three miles off, and seeing he was bent on going, I decided on accompanying him.

We went on for some two miles, until we crossed a railway line. By the side of this ran a road marked "Private."

"His private path," said I, mechanically.

"Yes, said Gerald, with a ferocious glare in his eyes that made me shudder, "therefore let us use it."

Hardly had we crossed and entered on the road, when coming towards us from a little copse on the other side, we saw two women. They advanced from some distance, and to reach us, would cross the line.

"Merciful heaven!" said Gerald, with a quick gasp, "Lucy!"

I looked, and recognized Lady Desserton, her companion, a nurse, carrying a crowing, laughing baby. Staunoel's eye fell on it like that of a famished wolf; the hungry glare in them was horrible, and the convulsion of his features was dreadful.

"His child," he muttered; "the future viscount—their heir."

"Yes," said I, "and her child, Gerald, too."

He shivered, passed his hands over his eyes, and said in a calmer tone, "Aye, here—Lucy's—Lucy's," with a pathetic intonation very pitiful to hear.

The gallop of the horse was heard behind us. I looked back and saw Lord Desserton. Staunoel looked round and started, while the red flush darkened his face with passion.

"Do you see the dog?" said he quite furiously. "Now's my time—now."

He turned. I seized his arm, dreading some act of violence, when the shrill whistle of a steam engine rang out. I looked and saw the express coming at a tremendous speed, while a shriek from Lucy drew my attention to what was indeed a terrible sight. The nurse had slipped on the rails, and the child had rolled in front of the advancing train, while the unhappy mother made the air resound with her screams; suddenly her eyes fell on my companion. Stretching out her hands, she shrieked, "Save him, Gerald, save him!" and then fell fainting into her husband's arms, who had reached the spot.

Gerald paused a second, and then, with a glance at Lucy, sprang on the line. He seized the baby, tossed it to the nurse, and turned; but the express was on him like a flash, it passed, and Gerald Staunoel lay motionless between the rails. Desserton, his face blanched to the lips, hurried over, as did some laborers near. I, half frantic, rushed to our poor friend, and a cursory examination showed me how fatal his injuries—arms and ribs broken, by the blow of the engine buffer, and internal wounds. He only lived an hour from the time he was struck down. He was sensible, and we carried him into a cottage near, and there in a strange group we stayed.

By and by, the white face grew for a second flushed, the eyes opened, the lips quivered, and Lady Desserton burst into bitter tears.

"The child?" gasped Staunoel, half inarticulately.

"You've saved him—you whom I so wronged," she sobbed out.

"I," he said, with a look of happiness on his bleeding face—"I, Phil; you hear her? That's my revenge."

DESCENT OF A METEOR.—A GRAND AND STARTLING SPECTACLE.—Capt. Turner, of the schooner Algerine, who arrived in the city this morning, reports having witnessed at about the hour of 11 o'clock on Wednesday night a terrific and splendid phenomenon in the descent of an immense meteor into Lake Ontario, which struck the water not more than three hundred yards from his vessel. The Captain states that a few moments previous to the appearance he had come up from his cabin on deck, and was standing on the main hatch. The vessel was on the starboard tack, sailing along finely with a light south-west breeze for Port Dalhousie, and about twelve miles off the Niagara light house, bearing S. S. W. Presently his attention was attracted by a sudden illumination from the north-west, which almost instantly increased to a dazzling brilliancy. On turning, he beheld a large body of fire in the heavens, which seemed to be approaching at a descent of about 30 degrees, and growing rapidly larger as it came nearer, the observation of time being so brief as hardly to admit of computation in seconds. The momentary impression of Capt. Turner was that certain and complete destruction awaited his vessel and all on board, as the terrific missile seemed to be directed to strike the vessel broadside. The time for reflection, however, was brief, and the light emitted was so blinding in its effect that the man at the wheel and another of the crew on deck fell prostrate, and remained for some time completely stupefied with terror. The Captain himself, as he states, remained transfixed and saw the fiery body enter the water some 300 yards ahead of his vessel, about two points to the windward. A loud explosion attended the contact with the water, which was sharp and deafening, equal to a thunderbolt close at hand, and a large volume of steam and spray ascended into the air, which was noticed for some moments afterwards. In the confusion of the moment, Capt. Turner was unable to comprehend what had occurred, and the crew were inclined to believe that the phenomenon was an explosion of lightning, the sky being perfectly cloudless at the time. The Captain estimates, as well as he was enabled to judge from the brief time for observation afforded, that the meteor was a body about twenty feet in diameter. A long train of flame of the most intense brilliancy was noticed as it struck the water. As Capt. Turner describes his sensation, his faculties for the moment were all compressed in the sense of sight, so overwhelming was the light from the fiery object, but he says he believes he was sensible to a terrific whizzing noise, similar to that made by the steam issuing from the escape pipe of a steamer, which attended the meteor previous to the grand explosion on striking the water. Capt. Turner arrived at Port Dalhousie on Wednesday morning. He assures us that his nervous system did not recover from the shock experienced for many hours afterward.—Hamilton (Ontario) Times.

BADGER.—Lately a man got out of the cars at Peoria (Ill.) with a large bag in his hand, which he carried very carefully. After walking up the street a short distance he put his bag down, untied it and lifted out a good sized boy. He had brought him several miles as baggage and without having him checked.

RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT!
THE MOST REMARKABLE DISCOVERY EVER MADE!

Will Cure All Pains in a Few Minutes!

Read the Certificates!

SPRAINED WRIST CURED.

PORTLAND, August 10 1867

I was at Mr Wegner's store on Saturday, August 10th, and seeing the magic effect of J. G. RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT, in his case, concluded to try it on my wrist which has been sprained for some time. I found relief inside of FIVE MINUTES from its application, and it is now perfectly well. My wrist was so swelled I could not shut my fingers. I believe it will cure any pain in a short time. I will give any further particulars to whoever calls on me. VINCENT McCULLOUGH,
Corner of Fifth and College streets.

Tumor Removed!

PORTLAND, August 10th, 1867

I HAVE USED RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT for pain and swelling of the gum and cheek. I had a large tumor forming on the gum which arose from filling the nerve in my tooth and caused me a dreadful pain which prevented me from sleep for several nights. I applied the Liniment, and to my surprise, it removed the lump and eased the pain so that it is now as well as the other cheek. My cheek was fearfully swollen. This was done in the presence of two witnesses.

I. MITCHELL

I was present and know the above to be true, and am willing to swear to it. L QUIVEY

PORTLAND, August 12th, 1867

For five years I have suffered with a pain or weakness in my back, which at times was dreadful. I often thought I could not bear such torment. But I got a bottle of RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT, and with one rub it perfectly cured me. I can recommend it to any lady suffering from pain in any way, for I am convinced it will at once remove them. DORIS COHN,
Corner of Fourth and Taylor streets.

Any person who does not believe this can call, and I will convince them.

Rheumatism Cured!

State of Oregon, County of Multnomah—ss

JEREMIAH BROCK, BEING DULY SWORN, SAY that I am fifty-three years of age, that I reside in Yamhill County, State of Oregon. I came to Portland on business, on Saturday, from my home this morning. When I left home I could scarcely walk or stand on my feet, from Rheumatism, which has afflicted me for the last eight years. I was standing in Wilson's stable, on First street, in this city, when I heard Mr. Rennick's offer to bet that he would take out the Rheumatism in any case in twenty minutes. Rennick offered to bet $100 that he could do it. I went to Mr Rennick's house and he applied the Liniment to my leg, and in twenty minutes my leg felt sound and limber, and as well as ever. TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

616 KEARNEY STREET,
NEAR COMMERCIAL,
San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Disease.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost universal extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, diminished intellect, loss of confidence, influence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

TO THE LADIES.

The various complicated and distressing diseases incident to females, treated with eminent success. Such as Suppressions, Irregularities, Whites, Falling of the Womb, Tumors, all Urinary Diseases, Nervous Debility, Painful or Difficult Menstruation, Barrenness, etc., will be speedily cured, without poisonous drugs, injuries or unpalatable medicines of any kind. Have no delicacy in calling, no difference what your troubles may be. The afflicted are cordially invited to call and satisfy themselves.

Persons calling at Dr. Gibbon's office or sending for packages of medicines, may rely upon his assurances of confidential secrecy with implicit faith, and expect no more than to be charged with, a fair, and mutually satisfactory remuneration for services rendered, considering the circumstances and difficulties of cases, rather than a too prevalent and selfish practice of extortion among quacks and pretenders.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.
